THIRD PARTY CERTIFICATION GENERAL INFORMATION

Company Information Requirements

To qualify as a third party certifier, your company must have a minimum of ten Class A or Class B vehicles; at least one must be a power unit. The vehicles should be currently registered and the registration should show your company's name as the registered owner or lessee.

If your company is not shown on Department of Motor Vehicles registration documents, we need a copy of your current lease documents. If the number of vehicles leased or owned by your company falls below the minimum number required, your third party certification will be suspended.

To qualify as a third party certifier, your company needs to have a driver testing and training program that includes a skills test for each new driver hired. You need to have adequate area and access to roads that will allow you to conduct the following in your training and testing:

1. Pre-trip inspection
2. Placing the vehicle or combination in operation
3. Use of the vehicle's controls and emergency equipment
4. Operating the vehicle or combination in traffic on public roadways including passing other vehicles
5. Turning the vehicle or combination
6. Braking and slowing the vehicle or combination by means other than braking
7. Backing and parking the vehicle or combination

Your company's testing records need to be maintained at the company site and be available for review by Field Services Division CDL staff.

When your company qualifies, you will be given a certification number. The annual fee for maintaining Third Party Certification is $555. This fee will be collected when your application is approved.

Each driver issued a Certificate of Driving Skills needs to pass a road test that meets Nevada's CDL test requirements and standards.
